

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Roberta B. Pierce is a certified speech–language pathologist and orofacial myologist in private practice in Huntsville, Alabama. Her experience encompasses work with young children, adolescents, and adults. Areas of specialization include tongue thrust, aphasia, motor–speech disorders, articulation disorders, delayed speech and language disorders, and helping children eliminate thumb and finger sucking habits. In addition to therapy, she is active in providing in-service training for kindergartens, day-care centers, special schools, and health-care providers. Mrs. Pierce has made many presentations at state, national, and international professional association meetings.

Her experience includes work as director of speech–language pathology for both the Huntsville Rehabilitation Center and the North Alabama Rehabilitation Hospital. She has worked extensively in home health, acute care hospitals, and Head Start programs.

Mrs. Pierce previously served as president, journal editor, and member of the board of directors and the board of examiners of the International Association of Orofacial Myology.

She received a BS in speech pathology from the University of Tennessee–Knoxville and a MAT in speech pathology from the University of Florida–Gainesville.

© copyrighted material by PRO-ED, INC.